Throughout history colours have been recognised as an unspoken language understood by all humankind, and are popularly connected to seasonality and to mood.

Whilst deep winter influences visions of dramatic skies in every hue of grey, autumn evokes ideas of warm rustic browns and earthen tones. Spring brings new life and shades of lively greens and soft yellows give promise of marvels yet to come.

Warm summer light encourages civilisation to slow down and soak up its surroundings as they peak and bloom into soft pinks and regal blues.

In the modern world, as urban design and nature collide and contrast, an eclectic vibe delights the mind and senses.

The new Micromax2 shades take influence from the natural environment and reflect the drama of changing seasons. Detail makes all the difference, and selecting Micromax2 unlocks the potential for your next tiling project to be that touch closer to nature.
